The Worn Wedding Ring.

BY BENNETT.

William Cox Bonnett was born in Greenwich, Eng., October 14, 1820. His father was a watchmaker. He has published volumes of verse, edited a monthly periodical and written political articles for newspapers. In 1869 he was given LLD, by the university of Tusculum

YOUR wedding ring wears thin, dear wifel ah, summers

Since I put it on your finger first, have pass'd o'er me And, love, what changes we have seen-what cares and pleasures, too, Since you became my own dear wife, when this old ring

O, blessings on that happy day, the happiest of my life, When, thanks to God, your low, sweet "Yes" made you my loving wife;

Your heart will say the same, I know; that day's as dear to you,—
That day that made me yours, dear wife, when this old ring was new. How well do I remember now your young sweet face that day

How fair you were, how dear you were, my tongue could hardly say, Nor how I doted on you; ah, how proud I was of you; But did I love you more than now, when this old ring was new?

No-no; no fairer were you then than at this hour to me; And, dear as life to me this day, how could you dearer be: your face might be that day as now it is, 'tis true; But did I know your heart as well when this old ring was new?

For me you would not bravely face, with me you would not share? O, what a weary want had every day, if wanting you, O, what a weary want had every day, if wanting you, Wanting the love that God made mine when this old ring was new!

Years bring fresh links to bind us, wife—young voices that are here Young faces round our fire that make their mother's yet more dear. Young, loving hearts, your care each day makes yet more like to you More like the loving heart made mine when this old ring was new.

And, bless'd be God! all he has given are with us yet; around Our table every precious life lent to us still is found; Though cares we've known, with hopeful hearts the worst we've struggled

Bless'd be His name for all His love since this old ring was new

The past is dear, its sweetness still our memories treasure yet; The griefs we've borne—together borne—we would not now forget; Whatover, wife, the future brings, heart unto heart still true, We'll share as we have shared all else since this old ring was new.

And if God spare us, 'mongst our sons and daughters to grow old, We know His goodness will not let your heart or mine grow cold; Your aged eyes will see in mine all they've still shown to you, And mine in yours all they have seen since this old ring was new.

And O, when death shall come at last to bid me to my rest, And O, when death such costs and resting on that brest;
O, may my parting gaze be bless'd with the dear sight of you.
Of these fond eyes—fond as they were when this old ring was new!

FESTIVAL A SUCCESS

Two Brilliant Performances Yesterday Closed Eleventh Annual Concert. f

GREAT WORK OF CHORUSES

Singing Last Night Was Notably Fine-Mine. Homer the Star of All the Soloists.

Two brilliant performances at the Academy of Music yesterday closed the annual festival of the Wednesday Club, and put an end to the flood of melody that has delighted Richmond udiences during the past two days.

In summing up the results the festival may be pronounced a success. The atendance was made up of the most cultured people of Richmond, and was in every respect all that could be desired. several circumstances and notably the early opening of the London season prefamous soloists, who have distinguished previous festivals of the club, but those here were choice and artistic performers Of the number Mme. Homer is far and away the star. She is one of the finest contratios in the world, and she was greeted with a storm of applause last night. Miles, the baritone, is in the same high class, and then came the others. All did spnedid work that was thoroughly appreciated by the audiences. Above all things, however, should mention be made of the chorus work. Nothing finer than this has ever been heard in Richmond and nothing ever will since it approaches so near to perfection. There may be larger choruses, but their training could not well be better. Of the orchestra, much the same thing may be said. Mollenhauer is a worker than and his infinitable style has made alim remarkably popular. Where the conductor goes the orchestra follows, and Mollenhauer never goes any way but the right. Of the number Mme. Homer is far and was the work of the chorus of about 300 children, who made a beautiful picture upon the stage. Under the skillful direction of Mr. Walter C. Mercer, the children performed wonders and called down the tumultuous applause of the house. Never before was "Dixie" sung in such fashion or "America" during both of which the audience rose spontanboth of which the audience rose spontaneously to its feet and clapped loud and long when it was done. The little faces were bright and happy, and sparkling, showing what the bond of sympathy can do. The parents of many of the children sat proudly in the seats and looked and heard. The fresh young voices rose sweet and pure, and sent a thrill into the hearts of everybody there.

Afternoon Concert.

A thunder storm preceded the afternoon performance and showers of rain fell dur-ing and after the concert. The state of the weather, however, had absolutely no effect upon the attendance, and the Academy was filled with another distin-cuished audience.

They did well with the "Pilgrim's Chorus," an old favorite, and sang the music of "Martha" admirably. The experiment in the former instance, however, was risky. Wagner is too heavy, certainly in this magnificently melodious chorus, for the voice of a child.

All Well Received.

All Well Received.

All of the sololsts were well received.
Mr. Holmes Cowper opened the vocal programme with a tenor orlo, "Chaste and Pure," from Gounod's Faust. Then followed Mme. Shotwell-Piper, who was given an ovation, Miss Mulford, the contraito, and Mr. Martin, the splendid basso. It is a source of regret that there were no encore numbers. The audience clapped until its hands ached, but all it received in return was a bow. An encore some-something more popular and amiliar, preferred—would have made a great hit then.

The quartette sang with the children's core soing—softened—would have made a great hit then.

The quartette sang with the children's chorus in the Fair Scene from Martha. Reference has already been made to the work of the children in this number. The artists also did splendidly. Anything in nuade sweeter than the duet can hardly be imagined. Mr. Martin and Mr. Cowper made the most of their opportunity. As this criticism said yesterday the work of the choruses is the most striking thing about the present festival. The training is perfect, and all praise is due to Mr. Gookins and Mr. Mercer. The soloists are doing very well, though there are some weak spots. One thing in the whole festival is absolutely beyond criticism, and that thing is the Boston Festival Orchestra, directed by that wonderful and delightful man, Mollenhauer. The work of this orchestra yesterday was work of the orchestra directed by that wonderful and delightful man, Mollenhauer. The work of this orchestra, trected by that wonderful and delightful man, Mollenhauer. The work of this orchestra, trected by that wonderful and delightful man, Mollenhauer. The work of this orchestra, vesterday was perfect. The "poetic scenes," with which the concert opened. Cannot be described in ordinary English words. They were beautiful and there were four of them, all by Goddard. The Valse Lente by lenbergor, was also very fine.

The Night Concert.

The Night Concert.

The Night Concert.

At night every seat in the Academy was again taken. The weather was still threatening, but the clouds scudded by without leaving any rain in their path.

Despite every effort of the club-announcement and request the audience did not arrive in time and the first number, the Vorspiel to Parsifal was sadly interrupted. This first performance here of any of the Wagnerian opera had been keenly awaited by many, but to those who sat anywhere near the rear it was a complete failure. This was not the fault of the orchestra, but of the stream of late arrivals that kept pouring in. To appreciate the Vorspiel fully it is necessary to have perfect quiet and of this there was none during the entire performance of it. The orchestral performances of the air from Bach was much more thoroughly enjoyed.

The chorus work was again a feature of the evening. Under the splendid direction of Mr. Gookins, the club sang unusually well, both in the special nembers and in the exceptis from "Aida," with which the eleventh festival closed.

COLD KILLS THE GERM.

COLD KILLS THE GERM,

Lieut, Perry Says There Are No Baid

Heads in the Arctic Region.

The people who come back from Kiondyke testify to the fact that no native baid heads are there. The evidence is that the cold climate kills the germs that eat the hair off at the root. Lieutenant Perry, who went to the Arctic Regions, gives the same evidence. Newbro's Herpicide has the same effect as the cold climate. It kills the germ that eats the hair off at the roots, and the hair grows again. Herpicide is the first hair romedy built upon the principle of destroying the germ that eats the hair off. Its phenomenal sale demonstrates the correctness of the scalp germ theory. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c, in stans for sample to The Herpicide Co., Petroit, Mich. Owens and Minor Drug Co., Special Agents. Co., Special Agents,

The most effective work of the chorus was in the bridal chorus from "The Rose Maldea," by Cowan, The orchestra was as usual splendid. The suite for the string orchestra by Paul Juan was finely rendered and the grand fantasic from "Don Juan" was most thoroughly grand and enjoyable.

Cowper in the Gap.

Comper in the Gap.

Considerable regret was expressed that Sig. Jacques Bars, the famous tenor, could not appear. A sudden indisposition made it impossible for Sig. Fersion sing. His place was taken by Mr. Holmes Cowper, popular from the evening before, and was by him most admirably managed. The finest work of the evening, however, and of the entire series of concerts, was by Mme. Louise Homer, one of the leading contraitos in the operatic world. Mme. Homer sang in Italian, and she was given the most enthusiastic reception accorded any of the soloists. The applause she received after her magnificent handling of the aria from "La Gioconda," by Parshiell, was so prolonged that she was compelled by return and repeat the performance.

In the excerpts from "Aida," all of the soloists sang. Mr. Gwllym Mites, whose wonderful baritone places him in the same class with Mme. Homer, appeared for the first time, and was most liberally applauded. Mr. Martin was good in the basso parts and Mr. Cowper's voice rose sweet and pure in the tenor lines. By the time Mr. Cowper had finished he had won to him many who were not his entituded by Miss Anita Rio, who appeared Monday in "The Messiah." Miss Rio has a splendid voice, though at times it falls rather flat upon the ears. Her art is almost perfect. During the latter part of the "Aida" selections she was wonderfully true and facile in her expression.

The lack of encores was again keenly wonderfully true and ractio in her cor-pression.

The lack of encores was again keenly felt, Mme. Homer was dragged back by main force, after the audience had pounded its hands into insensibility, and then she simply repeated a part of what she had sung before. This was fine enough, but something different would have been better under the circumstances.

MAY DEFEAT GAINES BILL

Measure Removing Tax From Sale of Leaf Tobacco Is Not Likely to Go Through.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.) WASHINGTON, D. C., April 26 .- The chances are more than even against th passage of the Gaines bill removing the tax from the sale of leaf tobacco, and rermitting it to be taken to market by an agent of the farmer, which cannot now be done. The bill will not get through the Senate unless there should something happen which nobody expects tcbacco raising country, and they take very little interest in the bill. Some of them, who are specially close to the tobacco 'trust, according to Mr. Gaines, want the bill defeated, as it will tend to increase the price of tobacco to the manufacturing trust.

VIRGINIA LIGHTHOUSES.

Ropresentative Jones has succeeded in having reported favorably three bills locating lights at the mouth of Plankatank, Cherry Point and Ragged Shoals. He said there was some chance of getting these bills through the Senate as well as through the House at the present session. If they should pass the House alone they would go to the Senate Committee and be reported soon after the Congress convenes next December. Unlike a new Congress, the second session of the same Congress simply take up work where it was left off at the conclusion of the preceding session. But such work as may remain undone at the conclusion of the next session will have to be begun over again in the following session. DEMOCRATS SCORE VICTORY.

The Democrats scored a distinct victory. VIRGINIA LIGHTHOUSES.

DEMOCRATS SCORE VICTORY.

The Democrats scored a distinct victory to day when the House passed two resolutions introduced some time ago by Repicsentative Williams, of Mississippi, one of which called on the Attorney-General for information as to whether any prosecutions of a criminal character had been begun against persons found guilty in the Supreme Court in the recent ratiway merger cases, and the other cuils on the Attorney-General to know whether any steps have been taken by the Department of Justice to learn whether the anthractice coal carrying roads have formed a trust.

were that only three Republicans were present and that six Democrats were on hand. So the resolutions were taken up and ordered reported with the recommendation that they be adopted. The Reublicans fumed, and Dalzell actually wanted the House to lay the resolutions on the table, but the foolishness of this course was so apparent to the leaders that it was rejected and they were adopted to-day. The replies of the head of the Department of Justice, who has declared he would not "run amuck" in the matter of prossecuting trusts, are awaited with great interest, NOTHING NEW IN CRUM CASE. NOTHING NEW IN CRUM CASE.

Nothing more is heard of the request of the President that the Senate confirm the nomination of W. D. Crum, the negro appointed to the collectorship of the port of Charleston. The Republicans make no concealment of the fact that Mr. or concealment of the fact that Mr. Roosevelt has been urging that action be taken, but it is not thought that anything will be done, in view of the absence of Senator Tillman, who is very lill, and has undergone several surgical operations recently. It is a matter of doubt if very many Republicans want the Senate to confirm the nomination. It is good politics, think they and Mr. Roosevelt, to make such appointments, and they, if not Mr. Roosevelt, also think it is good politics to allow them to fall by default. Some day the negroes will realize that the Republican party appreciate them from their voting power alone. If every negro in the South and the North were disfranchised, there would be nothing more heard of the love of the Republicans for the brother in black.
